

Psychiatrists are swarming into Texas!

I'm sure you've read of the recent surge of paranoia in Texas. A week or so ago it was announced that the U.S. military was going to conduct military exercises in Bastrop County, Texas. Bastrop County is about 30 miles east of Austin.

Anyway, the paranoids are literally up in arms in Bastrop County. They've marched and demonstrated against what they fear is a federal takeover of Texas, a seizure of their precious guns, and an Obama-led effort to force ObamaCare on them.

This has caused job-seeking psychiatrists from all over the world to descend upon Bastrop County, knowing that there's an abundance of mental illness there. If you know of any unemployed psychiatrists, please alert them to the opportunities in Texas.
